Fundraising Regulator

Boot Out Breast Cancer proudly works with the Fundraising Regulator, an independent body who sets and maintains the standards for charitable fundraising.

The role of the Fundraising Regulator is as follows:

- To set and promote the standards for fundraising practice ('the code' and associated rulebooks) in consultation with the public, fundraising stakeholders and legislators.
- To investigate cases where fundraising practices have led to significant public concern.
- To adjudicate complaints from the public about fundraising practice, where these cannot be resolved by the charities themselves.
- To operate a fundraising preference service to enable individuals to manage their contact with charities.
- Where poor fundraising practice is judged to have taken place, to recommend best practice guidance and take proportionate remedial action.

We promise to be honest, fair, and open about our fundraising with you, our supporters.
